ment, the ecclesiastic and the military. Constantine was the first to establish, by means of the priests, a sort of civilian state; Clovis succeeded in founding the French monarchy only with this same support. Monks are the natural enemies of soldiers, and have more than once served to check them. The lay order will be strengthened by the creation of a teaching body, and even more strengthened by the creation of a great corporation of magistrates.

I think it is unnecessary to take into consideration a system of education for girls, they can get no better teaching than that of their mothers. A public education doet not suit them, for the reason that they are not called on to live in public; for them habit is everything, and marriage is the goal.

If we are to establish the nation, we must hasten to regulate by means of codes the principal fields of legislft* tion. The Civil Code, though imperfect, has done much good. Every one is familiar now with the first principles of conduct, and governs his property and business accord* ingly.

4th. In the report on burials I see that in the average year there are 14,000 deaths in Paris; that is enough far a splendid battle.

I have declined to commit myself to issuing ticketa for the service in my chapel; I think the seats should go to the first comers.

At Cairo, and in the desert, the mosques are inn* a* well; as many as 6000 persons may shelter and eat m them; or even use the fountains and water for baUtilt$, Our ceremony of baptism comes from this; it could
